Feed/Food Processing

Partnering for Your Profitability

Technical assistance with food and feed manufacturing are critical to the overall success of your business. Whether it's process audits, small project management, food safety implementation, crisis management, process design and layout, equipment specifications, sourcing and approval drawings or development of new lines or products for the industry, you need a single source solution.

Introducing 1 Solution Group

Founded in Northeastern Kansas, home of two of the industry's leading manufacturers of extrusion processing systems for the food and feed industries, 1 Solution Group vows to become the one solution for companies and individuals seeking assistance with research and development; process design and layout and/or consultation.

1 Solution Group is driven to provide the global food and feed industries with a wide range of services scaled to fit the client's needs, including process audits, technical construction management assistance, food safety implementation and development of new lines or products for the industry.

Research has consistently shown that petfood companies want to improve existing manufacturing capabilities — whether it be optimizing capacity, improving quality or refining food safety. Unfortunately, the internal staff at those companies is already busy with other projects, or they don't know how to solve the issues.

The Current Industry Challenge

Many times, management goes to an outside engineering firm, and that firm isn't familiar with the petfood industry . . . and very few of them are. The project can quickly escalate in both magnitude and cost because the engineers have to go through an extensive discovery and educational process.

There are also situations where the client has a problem with something like the extruder and turn to the equipment manufacturer for help. In most cases, though, there's not much the manufacturer can do other than to prove the extrusion system is working fine. Truth be told, it has nothing to do with the extrusion equipment, but, rather, has a lot to do with the ancillary devices, either upstream or downstream from the actual extruder.

The New Industry Solution

To counter such challenges, 1 Solution Group has put together one of the industries most experienced teams of knowledgeable experts who have vast experience in extrusion manufacturing operations, commercial aspects of pet food manufacturing, manufacturing staffing, project management, safety and food safety implementation and crisis management. In effect, 1 Solution Group utilizes its resources together to support customers' manufacturing/operations assessments and, even more important, provide tangible solutions and profitable enhancements to those processes, while working within the client's predefined budget.

A Diversity of Services

1 Solution Group offers services that range from consultation to design and layout of a manufacturing facility. The team is experienced at everything from the site plan and process flow diagrams, to the motor list and utility summary. If a client has a new product they want to develop, or they want to add more meat to an existing formula, we will help with research and development by assisting with formulation development, ingredient specifications, equipment recommendations and even feeding trials.
